EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

CASE NO. 21-CR-46

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA) Vs.)
Kaveh L. Afrasiabi,) Defendant.)

DEFENDANT'S LETTER TO THE COURT

To Honorable Judge Edward Korman:

Defendant Kaveh Afrasiabi, pro se, on the occasion of the approaching anniversary of the tragic events of September 11, perpetrated by Muslim extremists, brings to the Court's attention his poetry book, titled Metaphors in September, reflecting his humanist sentiments and his moral condemnation of religious bigotry and extremism, sadly running rampant in the Middle East nowadays. Also attached is the Defendant's theology article, republished by Cambridge University Press in 2011, which highlights the Defendant's commitment to inter-faith dialogue. As with numerous other examples of the Defendant's publications, these samples are submitted to debunk the government's false allegation that Afrasiabi wrote "books and articles" disguising propaganda.

Respectfully Submitted,

Kaveh L. Afrasiabi, Pro Se

METAPHORS IN SEPTEMBER

Ground Zero

My anger does not yield easily.
I live in ground zero, sightseeing, mourning, praying through a vague memory of once upon a time dialogue of civilizations floating like ghosts of firemen past staircases set in blaze.
The spirit stirred on that brilliant sunny September has crept into bones, permeating veins, insinuating air corridors, echoing along Hudson shores with magnanimous lament.
